COSHOCTON COUNTY HERITAGE QUILT BARNS

EVERY SQUARE records a history in the reproduction of an old family quilt pattern and stories told in memory of those who worked to create them. Images and recorded stories can be found at pomerenearts.org/quilt-barns

Painting quilt squares on barns started in 2001 when Donna Sue Groves painted her mother's favorite square on their tobacco barn in Adams County Ohio.

TRAVELING STORIES

from Carolyn Hays In 1927 Rutherford B. Hays (namesake of President Hays) traveled with his friend Marlo Gamertsfelder from Tiverton to Coshocton by train for their last year of high school. The small school in their hometown of Tiverton only went as far as the 11th grade. The boys spent their senior year weekdays in Coshocton,coming back to Tiverton for the weekend, as they went—by train. They were met at the station and driven the 6 miles home by car.

as told by Dennis Fender Louis Fender throwed down a check or bank draft or cash for $500 to his wife and he said I'm goin' to the army. He had just come over from Germany prior to that. This was during the Civil War time when they were trying to canvas for more recruits.

They had two little kids, a baby and another child that was not much more than a baby and this lady packed these kids up and she carried 'em up to a farm here in Millcreek Township. Now I bet she didn't have high heels on when she came up here. And you know I've often wondered if she was mad. But she mustn't have been too mad because when he came back they bought a farm up here and had a whole lot of kids.

Progressive Valley Trail

as told by Larry Stahl In a rural community neighbors help neighbors. North of Orange, Rosa Hoffman turned gravely ill and needed to get to the hospital in Columbus, Ohio. She was too weak to walk or ride. Her father, Jacob Hoffman lifted one side of her bed and their neighbor John Stahl lifted the other and they carried her in her bed the six miles to Isleta where she was boarded on the train. (Rosa died in Columbus, 1916.)
